Political program of the organization whose armed wing FALN (Fuerzas Armadas de Liberación Nacional) was active from 1962 to 1969. These were radicals largely drawn from the Communist Party of Venezuela, inspired by Cuba's revolution against Yankee imperialism and forced into clandestinity after President Betancourt banned the radical left. Proposes the formation of a revolutionary national and democratic government. "The FLN is not a communist organization, nor does this program suggest a communist solution for this country today. But we would like to declare categorically that all progressive sectors are present amidst our ranks, communist or not, Marxists in general and above all democrats aligned with the tasks of this program of action" (17). Scarce.
